The 'Supporting Children's Resilience in General Practice' e-learning resource was prepared by Emerging Minds as part of the National Workforce Centre for Child Mental Health initiative.

Content Development

Development of the Supporting Children's Resilience in General Practice e-learning resource was a collaborative effort with many people contributing their knowledge, skills, and experience to the project. Emerging Minds wishes to acknowledge individual GPs, groups and organisations for their support and contribution to the resource. Without your input, expertise and willingness to share, this resource could not have been developed. Thank you.

Child and Family Partners

Emerging Minds would like to particularly thank our child and family partners both as part of COPMI and Emerging Minds. There have been so many of you who have generously told your stories of lived experience with GPs and helped us to understand what has or hasn't worked for you and your children. We thank you and recognise that this work would be impossible without your advice and feedback.
